Kiran Bedi is a modern day hero in an age where heroes are few on the ground. Even before she became the first Indian Woman to join Police force in 1972, she had made her mark as a tennis champion, winning the Junior national Lawn Tennis title in 1966.

But it was a Police officer that she drew notice. Putting an end to the Akali - Nirankari riots in Delhi in 1977; Breaking up a 200-year Old illicit liquor trade in the capital in 1979; earning the name 'Crane Bedi' and not a few critics for her penchant for to lering away illegally parked cars, especially those that belonged to the rich and powerful during the stint as DCP in 1981.

And almost famously, converting what was seen as a 'Punishment Posting' as Inspector General of Prisons into one that brought her glory and covered her name with roses for introducing New Age reform to Asia's biggest jail, the Tihar.

Through it all, she has come to stand for all that people expect of leaders; selflessness, social activism and Vision.

Governments come and go, the International world order might change, but you can bet your last rupee, that when all else fails, kiran will go on; turning her gaze to newer areas where reforms can be introduced, exhorting us to do better, give back more, for try harder.

It's a proud after retirement she is rendering yeoman's services to the people, keeping in mind that she is a human being ---- and others too.

Conflicts can occur among people who have differing ideas or goals. Many conflicts are small and are quickly resolved. Others are serious and take time and effort to resolve. Many work conflicts occur when an employee feels a need to be in control of certain situations that are not part of his or her job description. This can create a power struggle. Power struggles, or conflicts over roles and responsibilities, often disrupt the work environment for everyone. Other common causes of conflict are personality differences, poor communication, and jealousy.

If you are ever involved in a conflict, avoid complaining to your boss right away. Instead, schedule a time with the other people involved to talk things out, using the conflict resolution strategies. Working together to resolve, or find a solution to, a conflict can be a valuable experience. You strengthen many of the skills you need in the workplace, and you help strengthen relationships at work.
